INTRODUCTION

The original Guide to Curriculum Materials and Testing Instruments has been expanded to its present form to include four additional major categories: Cultural Materials; Education and Career Opportunities; Audio-Visual Materials; and Bibliographies and Catalogs. The cost of materials has been quoted, when available. Free publications have been included under one of the seven individual categories and are no longer listed as a separate section.

The primary purpose of this bibliography is to assist ESC Consultants and Title III-B Project Directors of the OEO Migrant and Seasonal Farm Worker Programs in selecting appropriate curriculum materials. No attempt has been made to evaluate or recommend listed publications.

SRA Reading Laboratories. Science Research Associates.

The SRA reading laboratories suitable for the introductory stage of reading include Reading Laboratory I, Ia, Ib, Ic, and the older, but not out-moded, Elementary Edition (1958). The laboratories contain many articles as separate items which are grouped according to readability level. They are suitable for adults and are a great boon to the teacher who is teaching students at various levels of reading. Teacher's manuals are complete in every detail and lessons are designed so that much of the learning is self-instructional. The laboratories should be supplemented with vocabulary development materials.

Spelling Word Power Laboratory, IIB (Revised). Science Research Associates.

This kit includes many exercises for studying sounds and how words are put together. The study of vowels, consonants, abbreviations, contractions, plurals, homonyms, and difficult words are presented in the form of learning wheels. The students may find questions by turning a wheel and answers by another turn of the wheel, hence immediate reinforcement. A variety of check tests, spelling key cards, a student record book, and a teacher's handbook are included.

People at Work. American Book Company

A paperback reader for beginning students of English both at the high school level and at the adult level. The text centers about the work of a typical person in the United States and consists of two parts: a narrative account of the person's life and work, and a short play to be acted out in class. The vocabulary contains 600 words.

Level: grades 3 and 4

Programmed Grammar. McGraw-Hill

This self-instructional program covers the parts of speech and basic sentence patterns of modern written English. Consists of 29 units, each followed by a test, and a final examination. Frequent review frames are interspersed throughout the program.

$4.95 (hard cover)
$2.50 (soft cover)

Programmed Reading for Adults. McGraw-Hill

A series of 8 programmed workbooks for bringing older students (including total illiterates) up to a 6th grade reading level -- quickly and efficiently -- no apparatus or hardware equipment is necessary. The course is almost self-teaching and can be administered by any literate person, regardless of teaching experience. A simple, easily read teacher's guide provides complete instructions.

It is not necessary for every student to start at the beginning of this course. Instead, he first takes the Placement Test which shows what reading skills the student already has. Then he starts at that point in the course where he can effectively build upon those already acquired skills. If he has no reading skills (i.e., is totally illiterate), he starts in Book 1 of the series.

Materials in the Programmed Reading for Adults course:

Teacher's Guide to Programmed Reading for Adults.

Provides detailed explanation of the objectives, content, and organization of the course, and describes the techniques of using each of the books.

$1.24 (soft cover)

Placement Test.

Designed to indicate in which book each student should begin work in this course. Separate instruction sheet with each package of 100 tests.

$7.20 for package of 30 tests, (soft cover)

Book 1: The Letters of the Alphabet.

Teaches the student to identify and to write the letters of the alphabet, and to do the same with numbers up to 100. The student is directed by the teacher, but makes and checks all of his own responses.

$2.12 (soft cover)

Teacher's Edition of Book 1: The Letters of the Alphabet.

Provides a suggested script for oral presentation and direction by the teacher of the learning experiences covered in Book 1. Contains a complete student's edition of Book 1, arranged so that the appropriate oral presentation by the teacher for each page appears opposite that page.

$3.96 (soft cover)

Book 2: The Sounds of the Letters.

Teaches letter-sound relationships, a selected reading vocabulary of words up to five letters in length and including all the letters of the alphabet, and several proper names. Like Book 1, Book 2 is also teacher-administered. The students make both oral and written responses.

$1.76 (soft cover)

Teacher's Edition of Book 2: The Sounds of the Letters.

Provides a suggested script for oral presentation and direction by the teacher of the learning experiences covered in Book 2. Contains a complete student's edition of Book 2, arranged so that the appropriate oral presentation by the teacher for each page of the student's book appears opposite that page of the student's book.

$2.80 (soft cover)

Book 3: From Words to Sentences.

The student begins working independently and completely at his own pace. The techniques and content of Book 2 are extensively reviewed in a progression which requires the learner to sound out words according to phonetic principles. He advances from simple word discriminations to reading phrases and sentences.

$1.60 (soft cover)

(NOTE: There is no individual Teacher's Edition of Books 3-8 because the student can work in these books by himself, requiring only some supervision and guidance by the teacher.)

Book 4: Sentence Reading.

The sound progression expands to include complex consonant blends, inflected forms, and words up to eight letters in length. Using the sentence as a basic unit, the student describes pictured situations, interprets action sequences, and selects logical conclusions from listed alternatives. He thus acquires skill in manipulating sentences in series.

$1.60 (soft cover)

Book 5: Paragraph Reading.

Situational structuring grows more complex. The student reads paragraphs and answers questions about their content. He masters many new sound classes and enlarges his active reading vocabulary by a large number of new words.

$1.60 (soft cover)

Book 6: Consecutive Paragraphs.

Prefixes, suffixes, and compound words are treated as the student masters long vowels and reads consecutive paragraphs.

$1.60 (soft cover)

Book 7: Content Analysis:

The student reads whole pages of text and answers questions designed to promote comprehension. Reading passages are alternated with word drills and exercises which reinforce the linguistic progression.

$1.60 (soft cover)

Book 8: Functional Reading.

As the student learns to read relatively sophisticated and even technical prose, he applies his reading skills to solving many problems related to employment and his personal life.

$1.60 (soft cover)

Single copy free, additional copies 25¢ each

Teaching English to Puerto Rican Pupils. Board of Education, City of New York

These are texts designed for New York teachers. Adjustment for the adult learners must be made where necessary. Each book contains:

A. First Part

1. Introductory chapters on the modern scientific language-teaching method.

2. Lists of English structural patterns classified according to their similarity or non-similarity to Spanish patterns.

3. Discussion of pronunciation problems of Spanish-speaking students.

B. Second Part

1. Suggested experiences with related vocabulary and language patterns centered around orientation and social study units.

Emphasis has been placed on the elementary level; a variety of activities for instruction can be based upon these materials which make use of various approaches, such as controlled drill, dialogue, listening games with sequenced responses.

Matthews, M. Beginning American English: A Conversational Approach to the Study of English. 2nd edition 2 vols. Chicago: University of Chicago Press

Twenty-five units, dialogue, exercises in vocabulary, sentence structure and pronunciation, and abundant review. Adults have been highly motivated by this approach; teachers do not need to be very sophisticated in TESL to teach this book effectively. Lessons should be supplemented by adapted, controlled drills and vocabulary.

English Sequential Pattern Drills for Spanish-Speaking Students. Tucson Public Schools

Sequenced drills with open vocabulary selection, translation, and helpful marginal notes indicating the problem areas of Spanish-speaking students. Books intended for remedial work for high school students at the intermediate level. Especially for the more academic students, reinforcement of drill with pin-pointed contrasting analyses of the items may prove useful for others. The drills could be adapted with suitable vocabulary entries to the context units.

Level: intermediate - advanced

Graded Readers for English as a Second Language. Prentice-Hall, 1962

Level: grades 8-12 and adults

A Practice Book in English Stress and Intonation for Students of English as a Second Language. Washington Publications, 1961

Drill materials and communication pronunciation. A remedial text for advanced students with particular difficulty in stress and intonation. Drill instruction could be introduced to drum beat or equivalent, and motion, capitalizing on the Mexican's love of music and dance. Dialogues can be modified when necessary.

Level: advanced

Procedures for Teaching English as a Second Language: An Adult Education Handbook. Los Angeles City Schools, Division of College and Adult Education, 1964

My Country. Revised Edition. Steck Company

The content is social studies, the interest level is fair, and the legibility is excellent. Vocabulary control and the rate of introduction of new words is adequate when supplemented with other materials. The comprehension exercises and phonic program are adequate. The 1964 revision differs little from the earlier edition.

Men in the Armed Forces. U.S. Government Printing Office

This book extends in readability from Level I through Level 4. Interest level is fair, legibility good, and general appearance is good. Vocabulary load is high and the text does not contain a planned phonics program. Part I of the book can be used with Level I readers, but it should be supplemented with other materials.

American Classics: Simplified and Adapted. Regents Publishing Co.
